Why should I join?

If you've got a burning interest in climate change, international development, or globalisation – the Society is where you can share your passion for places, travel and the environment.

You might be planning a gap year, looking for careers advice or support for your study or field work. For all of this and more, join the Society.

If you think 'been there, done that,' then prepare to be challenged and inspired by our many lectures, events and websites.

To liven up your travel, use our huge library full of guidebooks and maps on every possible destination.

And, with discounts on kit, books and a monthly copy of Geographical magazine all included, being part of the Society won't cost you the earth.

(Better still, if there is someone that thinks the world of you, tell them about our special gift membership...).

- Plan your travel or gap year using our information, maps, research and guidebooks
- Improve your knowledge with our online case studies, resources and publications
- Get help with funding for UK fieldwork and overseas with our range of grants
- Benefit from great discounts on books, maps, outdoor kit and vaccinations

Membership package

- Access to our website www.geographyinthenews.rgs.org
