By 2050 it is expected that 70% of the world’s population will live in urban areas.

Urban dwellers

Urbanisation is occurring globally.

“By 2050 it is expected that 70% of the world’s population will live in urban areas.”

Migration Feeds Megacities

Urban dwellers will number 4.2 billion by 2050.

Megacity growth

Around 1.3 million people move from rural areas to urban areas every week. It is expected that 1.2 million people will move each week until 2025.

Urbanisation occurs globally.

Challenges and Opportunities

Cities join to form a mega-region.

City life brings opportunities, but also challenges too.

City dwellers living on less than $2/day in 2050.

CURRENT MEGACITY POPULATION

Adapted from the United Nations Human Settlements Programme: World Cities Report 2010.”}

Migration feeds megacities.

Cities grow outwards and upwards.

Urbanisation and population growth

The percentage of people living in urban areas has increased in every continent.

Migration feeds megacities.

Cities join to form a mega-region.

City life brings opportunities, but also challenges too.

City dwellers living on less than $2/day in 2050.

CURRENT MEGACITY POPULATION

Adapted from the United Nations Human Settlements Programme: World Cities Report 2010.”

Migration feeds megacities.

Cities grow outwards and upwards.

Urbanisation and population growth

The percentage of people living in urban areas has increased in every continent.