

'Who should look after Granny?'

In the eyes of the NHS dementia is a social illness and as a result they make little provision. Dementia is an illness. Using the frame below express your opinion as to who should look after granny. Try to explain the reasons you are giving and try to offer some alternatives to the problem.

Should it be the NHS or family responsibility to look after the elderly with dementia?

Why do you think this?

How do you think the situation could be improved / made easier for all involved?
