● £5,000 and a BBC Radio 4 documentary for an inspiring and original journey

For those with a passion for radio and storytelling, and a genuine curiosity about the world around them, the Journey of a Lifetime Award offers £5,000 to make an original and inspiring journey anywhere in the world. The recipient of the award will receive training in radio broadcasting from the BBC, support from a BBC documentary producer, and will record their journey for a BBC Radio 4 programme.

Application deadline: 12:00 Monday 21 November 2022

About the Award

Established in 2001, the Journey of a Lifetime Award aims to inspire an interest in the people and places of the world and to discover new radio broadcasting talent.

Each year the RGS-IBG and the BBC support the best idea for an original and exciting journey. We are looking for new storytellers with inspiring ideas. Your journey needs to really matter to you – we need to feel your passion and enthusiasm and Radio 4 listeners need to be fascinated.

Your journey might take you anywhere in the world – whether far away or closer to home. However, we are looking for exciting new destinations not already visited by past recipients of the award:

www.rgs.org/journeyofalifetime. You can listen to previous episodes of Journey of a Lifetime here.

Your journey must be at least three weeks in duration and must take place between March and 30 June 2023.

The idea for your journey should not be a piece of reportage; BBC Radio 4 already have several journalistic programmes such as From Our Own Correspondent and Crossing Continents. What makes Journey of a Lifetime unique is that it is a personal account of your travels – as well as telling the story of the place you will be visiting.

We are looking for people who are excited about finding new ways to tell original stories in sound, so it is important to think of all the audio potential in your journey and your destination.

Eligibility

- Applicants must be aged 18 or over.
- Nationals of any country may apply, but must be able to commit to interviews, training and meetings which take place in London.
- Those currently employed by the BBC, independent production companies commissioned by the BBC, and RGS-IBG staff and their close relatives are not eligible to apply
- Our preference is for applicants with no or limited broadcast experience.
- Applications from small teams as well as solo travellers are accepted, but please make this clear in your application.
- The award cannot be used as an additional source of funding for an existing project.
- The award is for independent travel. We will NOT consider any journey joining a commercial expedition or pre-paid tour, including charity fundraising activities.
- The Society cannot support any journey that involves travel to or through areas where the FCDO 'advise against all travel' (red zones): www.gov.uk/foreign-travel-advice

How to apply

Initial Proposal

Applying to the Journey of a Lifetime Award is easy. Simply make a 60 second audio recording telling us – in your own voice – about the journey you wish to make. Tell us what your journey is, why you want to make it, and why the audience will find it interesting. You can record this any way you like (smartphone is fine).

Then email your audio pitch to jolt@rgs.org by 12:00 on Monday 21 November 2022 along with the following information:

1. Your name
2. Address
3. Contact email
4. Contact phone number
5. The title of your Journey of a Lifetime
6. A two-line summary of your journey
7. The country/countries of travel
8. Proposed dates of your journey

9. Details of any experience at a professional level in broadcast presentation and/or production
10. Where you heard about the award

Please note that your audio pitch can be submitted in any format but must be no longer in duration than one minute. The audio file must not exceed 10MB in size.

We are only looking for the 'pitch' of your idea at this stage – the core idea that makes this your Journey of a Lifetime. However, if you would like to provide us with further information about your Journey of a Lifetime, in addition to your audio pitch, you can provide written answers to the following questions in your application email (300 – 500 words maximum):

1. What story do you want to tell?
2. Why do you want to tell it?
3. Why will this interest the audience?
4. Why should this story be told on radio rather than another medium?

Initial proposals will be reviewed by a panel of judges and a shortlist of candidates will be asked to prepare a detailed proposal. All applicants will be contacted by the end of November with the outcome of their application.

Please contact grants@rgs.org if you have any questions about the application process.

Detailed Proposal

If your initial proposal is shortlisted, you will be asked to develop a detailed proposal. Detailed proposals should be submitted by email and must contain the following information:

- Full contact details
- Title and short description of journey (max 100 words)
- A full description of your journey. This might include your motivation for the journey, a description of the aspects of the journey that would make interesting radio, your aspirations following the journey and your previous travel experience (1,000 words)
- A breakdown of the budget for the different aspects of the journey
- An outline timetable for the journey.
- A risk assessment and safety management plan (max 300 words)

From the detailed proposals, up to six candidates will be invited to interview at the RGS-IBG in London.

Interviews

- Interviews will be held at the RGS-IBG in February 2023.
- Two finalists will be selected at interview to attend a training day at the BBC [transport and any accommodation will be at the entrants' expense]. A final decision regarding the recipient will be made following the training day. The training day will take place in February 2023.

Conditions

- The award consists of: (i) £5,000 grant for the journey; (ii) training in radio broadcasting from the BBC and (iii) the opportunity to record your experiences for a BBC Radio 4 documentary. The award is as stated. There is no cash alternative and it is not transferable.
- RGS-IBG requires that the projects it funds be conducted in an ethical and responsible manner. Full details of the Society's code of practice for the Grants Programme can be found here.
- The Society's support should be acknowledged in all publications and outputs. Copies of any such publications and outputs should be submitted to the Society.
- The BBC holds copyright of all audio outputs resulting from the award.
- The BBC will retain editorial control over any programme it may make. It cannot guarantee that any programme it may make will be broadcast.
- The BBC/RGS-IBG decision as to the recipient is final. No correspondence relating to the final selection will be entered into. The BBC Code of Conduct for competitions can be found here.
- BBC/RGS-IBG retain the right to cancel or to adapt the competition at any time if that is deemed an editorial necessity or if changed circumstances beyond their control call for such action. BBC/RGS-IBG reserve the right to disqualify any contestants who breach these rules or commit fraud.

Data protection

Your information will be treated in the strictest confidence and will only be used in connection with your application. Your data will be shared with selected reviewers, but will not be shared with any other third parties. If successful, information about your project, including names of participants and affiliated organisations, will be published on our website, kept as part of the Society's archive, and may be used to promote the Society's grants programme. Information about unsuccessful projects will be entered into the Society's archive.
